7 Timesaving Decorating Tips for Teachers

Teachers know a dynamic and engaging classroom encourages learning and is a fun place to be for students. They also know that maintaining a bright and fresh classroom requires an investment of time. These time-trimming decor tips are teacher-perfect!

1. Spend wisely. Purchasing a ready-made bulletin board set costs money; however, the right purchase can save you loads of time. Look for a set that contains multiple pieces that can be used in a variety of ways. Creative Teaching Press Sweet Shoppe Bulletin Board Set (Item #860933) is a great example. The set includes 30 student pieces (for learning center cards, desktags, and paper toppers); four programmable candy jars (for sorting activities, graphing activities, and task cards); wipe-off charts in a variety of sizes; accent pieces; and two signs. It's so much more than a bulletin board set!

2. Think low maintenance. Students enjoy a student response board, and so will you. Simply trim a display with colorful border, such as Creative Teaching Press Playful Patterns Border (Item #103700); post a title that is an open-ended phrase like "Today I Learned..."; and keep a colorful stash of Office Depot® Brand Self-Stick Notes (Item #843796) handy. Each day before dismissal, invite each student to write a response on a note and stick it to the display. No need to change this bulletin board. Just replace the title and remove the programmed notes every few weeks!

3. Stick with this! Do you know about Scotch® Expressions Washi Tape (Item #711974)? This low tack adhesive tape is extremely easy to use. You can tear it, stick it, reposition it, and even write on it! The tape comes in a variety of patterns. It's great for adding a splash of color to charts, task cards, bulletin boards, and more. Need quick and easy alphabet strips? Grab a roll of Illustrated Alphabet tape (Item #151526)!

4. Reuse titles. Save time by reusing bulletin board titles. Stock a binder with Office Depot® Brand Top-Loading Sheet Protectors (Item #498811). Write a title on an index card and then slip the card and the letter cutouts that spell the title inside a sheet protector. Save small cutouts or coordinating strips of bulletin board border in the protector too.

5. Choose long lasting. It's a fact—paper fades. When you need to cover a bulletin board, choose a backing that stays bright longer, such as fabric or a plastic table cloth. Each is also easy to fold and store for reuse next year.

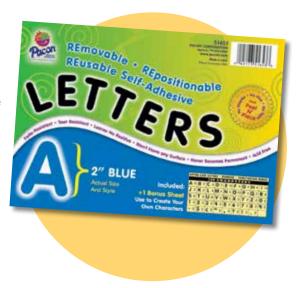

6. Involve your students. No matter what age, students enjoy seeing their best work on display. And the great news is that these displays are quick and easy to create. All you need is a title, a border, and student work samples. For additional timesavers, use Pacon® Self-Adhesive Letters (Item #459740) for the title and get the kids to make the border! Ideas include the following:

7. Customize! Whether you need a small reminder board, a board perfect for showcasing snapshots, or a larger board in a nonstandard size, Foray™ Cork Wall Tiles (Item #698479) are a timesaving solution. The tiles come in packs of four, and self-adhesive mounting tape is included. There's no need to add backing paper, but if you'd like a burst of color, consider a strip of Creative Teaching Press Playful Patterns border (Item #103700) or Scotch® Expressions Washi Tape (Item #711974).
